

Circulating to Address Political Violence

Findings from 31 interviews with people working across the field, organized by focus area and theme.

31

INTERVIEWS SO FAR

INSIGHTS

circulator conversation generated a followup step that supported participants' work

21 of 31 — pending direct follow-up

FOCUS AREAS

Interviewees are tagged by the areas they work in — click a bubble to see what people in that area are saying.

Bubble size = number of people interviewed (square-root scale)

Key points

Across all 31 interviews, people converge on the need for trusted local relationships and faster information-sharing across sectors.

Struggles

Funding uncertainty, burnout, and fragmented coordination across the field come up repeatedly as barriers.

Support offered

Interviewees most often offer connections to their own networks, and time to advise emerging efforts.